DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 21-30, and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Rogers et al (US 6,656,238).
3. Rogers teaches a coal-based carbon foam (abstract) having a thermal conductivity below 1 W/m/K (ref. Claim 1). The foam can be laminated with aluminum or other protective layers and used as a thermal protective system (column 6 line 10-41). The carbon foam has a density of between about 0.05 and about 0.1 g/cc (ref. Claim 1), which is an overlapping range. The compressive stress is below about 6000psi (ref. claim 3). Regarding claim 25, the foam can be carbonized (column 5 line 52-63). Regarding claim 26, the foam can comprise petroleum pitch, epoxy, or polymer additives (column 6 line 33-40). Regarding claims 27-28, inert solid material such as ceramic particles can be added to further minimize expansion of the foam (column 5 line 45-51). Regarding claim 34, the carbon foam can be used as a bulkhead or for sound dampening, therefore would inherently be positioned over a structure.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 31-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rogers in view of Kourtides (US 4,598,007).

6. Rogers, discussed above, teaches all the elements of claims 31-33, but is silent as to the antioxidant protective layer being a glass-forming compound consisting of a metal halide nitride or carbide, or the antioxidant protective layer being incorporated into the carbon foam.

7. Kourtides teaches a fire resistant graphite (carbon) composite, with a porous honeycombed center and facesheet protective layers (see abstract and figure 1). The facesheet can be made from a resin, glass fibers, and boron nitride additives, which will inherently form glass like coatings. The glass facesheet gives a more fire resistant properties.

8. Therefore since both Rogers and Kourtides teach the advantage of fire resistance, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to employ the facesheet (protective layer) of Kourtides in order to improve fire resistance of Rogers in fire retardant applications.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 21-34 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

10. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
